

WRITING TRANSITIONS

Highlight the best words in the quotes below. In the lines provided, write a transition sentence for the quote. Follow the transition writing guidelines.

- Find the good words.
- Prioritize the good words.
- If there is usable information in the quote that is cut, put that in your own words.
- Identify the main ideas of the quote that you decided to keep.
- Write 1–3 sentences previewing the ideas in the quote and include any relevant information that didn't make it to the "good words."

1. "This is my third homecoming, the first two homecomings I cheered for JV. This is my first homecoming cheering with the varsity, it's probably going to be a different experience. For homecoming we normally have a pep rally we always make up a dance and stuff but we are saving that for the JV game but we still have more stunts we are going to try but normally we just do our normal positions, but we are going to do where the JV comes in with us and we cheer with them." — Morgan Lancaster, 11

2. "When hearing the topic of graduation, it makes me feel many different emotions. All at once, I feel nervous, happy, anxious and sad. I'm happy school will be over, but I'm sad that I won't get to see my friends all the time." — Rebecca Lambert, 12

3. "Well, against Glass, it's going to be no different than from any other week to week, our expectations are the same. We just want to handle business, especially upfront with the offensive line, execute our schemes and we just want to continue winning especially in the Seminole district." — Coach Daniels

4. "My parents are also in the Democratic party. On a national level, they will vote for whoever has the best mindset to lead our country in the right direction. On a local level, they are very supportive of a meal tax to support our school system. Again, they will vote for local representatives that are going to contribute to our Campbell county schools." — Lora Callahan, 9

5. "I'm not like one hundred percent sure who all is running but if I was gonna vote I would vote for a president that was very adamant about what he or she believes in and is true to themselves and just really has a clear vision of what they want to do with the country." — Kathryn Johnson, 9
