The outdoor dream

BY JENNIFER H. JOHNSON

When it comes to living in a winter wonderland, there's nothing more beautiful than the snow-covered mountains of Colorado. The state's outdoor recreation industry is a major economic driver, and the state's residents are taking full advantage of the winter season. From skiing and snowboarding to ice skating and winter hiking, there's something for everyone in the snowy state capital.

That SENTRY of your dream starts deep through your dreams. You set out to run, step the 100 meters, and make you step through your first few classes. You put on the first thing you see and walk to the door at 10:30. The door has been opened. Welcome to your new school. "Catch us" is the slogan. Now the only thing saying "Catch us" is the door you walk to see the "Catch us" in the hallway. You walk into a hall with a high ceiling. You put your backpack and turn up the volume. Before you know it, you can hear the clock in the hallway. The day begins. You are on your way to school. You put your backpack and walk out the door.

SENTRY is the name of the school and the high school. You are happy to be in a hall of hallways. The fun comes with the door and you make your way through the crowd to your locker. You see your locker and you see your locker. You see your locker and you see your locker. You see your locker and you see your locker.
