The Cavalier staff at George Washington HS in Danville, VA has expanded their end-of-the-year tradition from seniors signing the desk to designing ceiling tiles.

“The desk was covered,” explained adviser Deborah Slayton, “so they decided the ceiling would be next.” And now, younger staffs start imagining their tiles – and which location they’ll decorate way ahead of time. The senior privilege doesn’t happen until after their final yearbook delivers.

THE FIRST TRADITION

An oversized wooden desk had been “autographed” by departing staffers for so many years there was no longer room to sign, so the graduating editors changed up the plan. Photos submitted by Cavalier staffers
